RADCLIFFE GIRL SUICIDE

Brother of 'Eleo' Sears Marries Chorus Girl COOLIDGE TRAPS AMHERST BOOTLEGGERS

RADCLIFFE GIRLS TRY SUICIDE

Students Form a Pact After Failure in Studies; Both Will Now Recover

Two students of Radcliffe College attempted suicide, it was learned today, in a suicide pact declared by the girls to have been made because both were down in their studies.

The girl students are Grace Williams, nineteen, whose home is at No. 64 Elm street, Worcester, but who goes to Bertram Hall, Cambridge, and Margaret Sengstack, nineteen, of No. 11 Everett street, Cambridge.

Four bottles of mercury tablets were swallowed by each of the girls last Monday night. Then, regretting their act, they staggered into the Stillman infirmary in Mt. Auburn street together and sobbed out the story of what they had done.

Physicians at the hospital, by heroic measures, succeeded in eliminating the poison from the systems of the girls.

Today the girls were said to be on the way to recovery. According to their own story they became discouraged when continual hard studying failed to keep their marks up to the passing grade.

TOOK POISON IN PACT.
According to the story of the strange pact, the young students met in Harvard square by appointment early Monday night.

They went to "Grace Williams' room in Bertram Hall and sat talking for a time. Then they agreed on the suicide plan, as a means of ending their difficulties.

Already they were in possession of mercury tablets, but the original pact called for suicide in Fresh Pond. But their courage was not yet up to the point where they wished to proceed immediately, and they went out for a walk.

Near the Stillman infirmary they suddenly decided to take the tablets. Each swallowed four.

Within a few minutes the pain caused by the poison filled them.

SHOW GIRL MARRIED TO SEARS

Hub Society Stirred by Wedding of Eleonora's Brother

By CHADLY KNICKERBOCKER, Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, Dec. 11.—The debbies are in despair, gloom pervades the ranks of the older girls and the dear matchmaking manna is desolate and discouraged.

The automata of Boston society are stunned—and shocked; the Metropolitan smart set is pardoningly excited and long suffering Newport has adopted that "what will happen next?" attitude.

WEDS FORMER CHORUS GIRL.
All because Frederick R. Sears, known to fame as the brother of the internationally famous Eleonora Sears, has married an attractive young person who, according to tales now circulating up and down Beacon street and Commonwealth avenue, Boston, once received a weekly stipend as a member of the merry-merry from that glitzy of the American girl, "Eleo" Ziegfeld.

"Freddie" and the former Norma Fontaine (last) they had to intention of keeping their wedding a secret. If the papers failed to print announcement of their marriage in far away Scotland, on August 14, last, it was the ladies' own fault.

MANHATTAN ROMANCE.
Be that as it may, Norma is now the wife of a member of the exclusive Bonnet Club and bears a name that is one of the oldest and proudest in all Boston.

The romance between "Freddie" and the former "Lady of the Emerald" had its inception right here on Manhattan Isle, in the glitzy office that Joe Broadway, their marriage, however, was at the estate which the Gurnee Munnis leased.

BASEBALL STAR A SUICIDE AFTER LOVE QUARREL

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 11.—Jack Wakefield, who was graduated with a brilliant preparatory school record to the St. Louis National League baseball team, shot and killed himself here. He left his fiancée's home after a quarrel and went to the home of a friend, saying as he entered, "Look out, I'm going to pull a pistol from his pocket, he fired a bullet into his head. Hek Wakefield, star Vanderbilt University footballer, is a brother.

In early training with the St. Louis Nationals this year Jack broke his leg and later was sent to Devilville of the Three I League and broke the leg again.

AMERICAN FINDS MISS KIMBALL

Missing Athlete's Sister Reveals Bickering and Quarreling With Father at Home

Providence, Dec. 11.—Located by the Boston American today following a vain police search, Miss Marion Kimball of Rehoboth gave the first substantial hint of what may have happened to her brother, William Kimball, athlete, who vanished mysteriously nearly three weeks ago.

Since the former Amherst man dropped from sight and his abandoned automobile was found jacked up in County road, Rehoboth, the authorities have hunted the sister, his left home four days before.

Now, on being located by the Boston American representative, she reveals that discord held sway in the Kimball household and she left home because she did not care to quarrel with her father.

The twenty-five-year-old sister of the missing athlete is working as a cook in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tudor Gross, No. 16 Angel street. She went there on the recommendation of another woman, for whom she cooked four years.

DISCORD AT HOME.
"I don't see how it can all be as bad as it has been for some time," she declared in answer to a question as to what might have happened to her brother.

"I left home rather than fight with father."

"All the family, as soon as they were able to leave school and go to work, have gotten out of the house to shift for themselves."

"But I have not the least idea what has happened to my brother. He may have run away because of differences with my father, or he may have been killed."

The girl, however, did not seem disturbed during the interview and her latter conjecture was given in a matter-of-fact way.

Ivory Kimball, the father, was last reported during the interview as being gruffed again today in an effort to find some way to the athlete's strange vanishing.

State Detective Francis Cunniff of Taunton and Sergeant James Mahoney of the Middleboro State Patrol, also questioned the fifteen-year-old brother, Albert.

According to the police, however, neither the father nor the younger brother, Albert.

THREE SEIZED IN STOLEN AUTO

Three Boston men, one armed with a revolver, were taken of a gun in an automobile on which there were two sets of registration plates by Patrolman James P. Dougherty of Winchester.

Held for the present as suspicious persons, the trio will probably face court for agency of the automobile, said to be the property of Dr. Charles A. Mac, No. 1235 Elm street, Boston.

Patrolman Dougherty came across the auto parked between two houses in a "backyard" place. His attention was attracted by whistling signals.

"Two men were seen climbing over a fence back of the North Block which fronts on Main street, and Dougherty's first impression was that a break had been made and he followed the men.

The men gave their names and addresses. Thomas P. Lynch, twenty years old, of No. 102 George street, Roxbury; Frank Gately, twenty years old, of Woodside avenue, Jamaica Plain; and Clifford Kowalski, nineteen years old, of Shirley street, Roxbury.

ENDS SALE OF RUM TO STUDENTS

Heavy Fines Imposed on Two Men Arrested as a Result of President's Action

Springfield, Dec. 11.—Two Holyoke saloonkeepers virtually on the direct order of President Coolidge, were given stiff fines when they pleaded guilty to liquor selling in the United States district court here today. Each was fined $750.

Not until the court proceedings today was it revealed that Mr. Coolidge was responsible for the arrests.

The President had been appealed to by members of the Amherst College faculty, who told him that students were drinking in the establishments owned by the men and that a loss of morale and class standing was resulting. He acted at once, suspending state and local enforcement officials with special officers whom he caused to be assigned from Washington to investigate the two places.

On evidence obtained when these agents raided the establishments on August 1 last, Michael Manning and Patrick J. Haggerty, the proprietors, were arrested.

President Coolidge in an Amherst mail sent consequently when the professors wrote to the alleged drinking organs by students and discovered the sources of their rum supplies, they went straight to the President with the information they had gathered.

No faculty members were in court today when the men pleaded guilty. The federal agents appeared as the complainants in both cases.

BROOKLINE PARENTS AROUSED BY SCHOOL BOARD REBUFF

MASS MEETING TO PROTEST LONG SESSION FOR PUPILS

The members of the Brookline Parent-Teacher Association are angry as they are planning to meet tonight.

The latest action of the Brookline School Committee, in forcing representatives of the Parent-Teacher organization to warm their heels in an ante-chamber, while the School Committee again discussed the matter of hours at the high school is not resting well with the parents.

After waiting an hour in the ante-room, the Parent-Teacher representatives were informed by Dr. C. C. Gallagher, superintendent of schools, that the high school hours would not be changed until after the Christmas holidays.

A town mass-meeting is among the possibilities suggested by the angry citizens and this will be discussed at tonight's meeting.

Dr. Frederick L. Hayes and Mrs. Stephen H. Follen, vice-chairman of the Parent-Teacher Association, and Mrs. William A. Schick, Jr., representing the high school students, were the ones who received the ultimatum from the school board.

The school committee, some weeks ago, added half an hour to the length of the daily period at the Brookline high school. That action has since been vigorously protested by students and their parents alike.

The latest action of the school committee, however, is in line with the previous stand of that body in refusing to restore the old hours.

Philadelphia, Dec. 11.—A legal fight over a $25,000 fortune said to have been amassed by the late Ellen Clark during a lifetime over washdays, and in which Cardinal Dougherty is named as a defendant, is pending in Orphans' Court here. Miss Clark, who died last April at the age of sixty-five, left all but $1,000 of her estate to Cardinal Dougherty for the erection of a church. Michael Clark, Baltimore, County Gateway, Ireland, a brother, and the rector of the Church of the Good Hope, each were left $500. An effort to prevent the probating of the will is being made by Mrs. Elizabeth A. Cochran, a sister of the testatrix.

WIN DEBATE ON 'INDIFFERENCE' OF HARVARD
 Son of Grover Cleveland on Affirmative Team in University Forensic Battle

By a vote of 24 to 9 a group of Harvard students, after listening to a debate on the subject, voted that the university most decidedly was indifferent.

But it developed that they weren't very clear as to the meaning of the word and its application to Harvard.

The question is, "Is Harvard indifferent, and if so should it be?" was discussed in the Quota Room at the Harvard Union.

LINEUP OF TEAMS.
 The principal speakers were Francis G. Cleveland, son and son of the late President Grover Cleveland, and John H. Fisher, also a junior. They argued for indifference.

On the opposite side the chief speakers were William I. Nichols, a junior, and George Leighton, undergraduate playwright.

Cleveland defined indifference as "the honest, healthy, innocent, unprejudiced state of a preoccupied person."

"SINGLENESS," SAYS NICHOLS.
 Nichols, however, said it was "single-mindedness, passionateness, mediocrity, carelessness, negligence, apathy, indifference and apathy."

Then they went off and at the end both sides came to the conclusion that the best condition for the individuality of each student would be allowed the fullest play consistent with the welfare of the college as a whole.

 Then a little bird told Fume that Bellina was in New York. Fume jumped right over to Dublin. He sighted Bellina and chased him in a firm grasp by the collar, then snatched him to the nearest police station.

For seventy-two hours the captives had eaten and slept in the police station, while his erstwhile friend lay in a cell.

THAN ANGRY AT EVENING; WON'T AID HER AGAIN

New York, Dec. 11.—Harry K. Thaw is angry with Evelyn Nesbit, his former wife, for saying he endeavored to rehabilitate himself in her affections.

In a telegram to Benjamin J. Spillman, No. 115 Broadway, his special counsel, Thaw declared Nesbit had "swindled everything by breaking into his private life with a lot of untruths."

He said he was paying her $10 a day, but would discontinue the payment.

"I have never seen her since the divorce," the telegram read, "and I have never in any way seen the girl called Nesbit. I have never purchased a house or business or anything else for the boy Mr. Nesbit (Evelyn Nesbit). Friends asked me to help her, but I refused to do so and gave $5,000 toward her purchase."

"I have gone further and volunteered to pay $10 a day as a gift. A portion of the money which might be due from May 8, 1924 (the date of Thaw's release) has been paid her. Now with the serious charges appearing in the papers—all of which are untrue and Mrs. Nesbit knows I am forced to cease all consideration for the present at least of payments to her."

"In spite of all she has done, I wanted to do the right and proper thing by her and now she breaks into the public press with a lot of untruths."

Miss Nesbit had also stated that Thaw bought a house for her and then caused her to be bankrupted and threatened with a mortgage for foreclosure.

Europeans Dance to Music Sent by Radio From the U. S.

New York, Dec. 11 (Universal.)—Europe danced to music sent early today by radio from New York and Philadelphia. Cables received from London said the dancing programs sent by the Wauwamater stores at New York and Philadelphia had been successfully received there and were being relayed all over the British Isles and the continent, and that after-dinner parties were dancing to the music in the London cafes.

The music from the Wauwamater stores was picked up by Station WJLA at Pittsburgh and relayed to London.

BRIDGEWATER STUDENTS BACK AT HOME

The campus of the Bridgewater State Normal School is deserted today.

The girls students of the institution have gone to their homes and no one apparently knows when they will resume their studies on about to celebrate their million-dollar fire, which swept through the school buildings. There is no insurance on the buildings and the trustees of the institution will be compelled to await action of the Legislature before they can replace the structures.

Bridgewater citizens are incensed over the revelation that the entire community is without fire protection. The Bridgewater Water Company, owned by former Governor Eugene F. Crow, is without the equipment to furnish the town with water pressure to fight any fire.

When the water company was granted permission to increase its rates last March, it was generally understood that the equipment was to be supplemented and the town given fire protection, but the company failed to spend funds in laying out mains and otherwise improving its service, according to those interested.

STAGE STAR THRILLED BY 'JANICE'

OTTO KRUGER LEAVING MAJESTIC THEATRE

KRUGER LAUDS MISS DAVIES IN 'JANICE'

What the dramatic critic takes for granted is in most cases a revelation of the actor's industry. If an actor has an intelligent conception of his role and has a full understanding of his art, real acting isn't a thing to him.

The expression of the character's soul of the emotions is the thing. And what should concern him is getting this expression ever effectively restrained being a negligible consideration.

Otto Kruger, star of "The Norwegian Week," delivered himself of these observations.

He had just seen Marion Davies in "Janice Meredith" and was standing in the lobby of the Majestic Theatre with a group of fellow Theatrons about him.

All were high in their praise of the intensity of feeling and the dramatic effectiveness maintained throughout the picture by Miss Davies and her alter ego, and the gripping story told by them.

The talk led off with something about the actor's point of view in making a picture.

Somewhat happened to mention the word "restraint."

Then Kruger, regarded as one of the most brilliant actors on the American stage, moved his critical guns into action.

"When you talk about restraint," he said, "you remind me of one striking instance of how the dramatic critic on Broadway were fooled for years."

"There was a young fellow who was absolutely barren of emotion or interpretation."

"If somebody suddenly announced that his mother had just died and stood there without a flicker of expression on his face and roared, 'Oh, I'm sorry'—just as a third-grader would go telling about the man with the one leg—about."

"And he got away with it for years, all the Broadway critics raving about the marvelous restraint revealed by this fellow."

Chicago, Dec. 11.—A heavyweight champion battle between Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons will be staged by Tex Rickard "somewhere in the East" July 4.

The announcement was made today by Gibbons when he arrived with his wife, babies and manager on route to his home in St. Paul from New York, where he landed on his first Norfolk in six rounds.

How a Billion Dollars Shrinks to a Third

The wisdom of income tax reduction is as plain as day. As incomes increase the rate jumps—that is, a ten-thousand-dollar income pays a higher rate than a five-thousand-dollar income, and the rate continues to jump with increasing incomes until it finally reaches a tax of 58 per cent.

Now, it happens in this world that if we go to extremes in anything we defeat our own aims. When anything becomes unbearable human nature rebels.

When we tax great incomes so much that money cannot stay in productive business, pay the tax and have more left than it could earn by being invested in tax-exempt securities, that money goes into tax-exempt securities.

If, however, we tax money a sum which it can pay and still stay in business profitably, then the business will go on and the tax will be paid.

This is true today; it was true ten thousand years ago, and it will be true when Gabriel blows his last horn.

It is not money that acts this way; it is the human race. All those who had incomes of $300,000 in the year 1916 reported a total income of almost one billion dollars. Fifteen per cent was the maximum tax on the largest income that year.

But after the war began rates were raised year by year until 1922, when a maximum rate of 58 per cent was collected by the government from the largest incomes. Large incomes, as reported, dropped in consequence of this taxation from nearly one billion dollars to $365,000,000. The cause of this drop was not because there were fewer rich persons. It was because the rich persons found a way to escape taxation lawfully by withdrawing their money from business and putting it into non-taxable securities. The matter cannot be more clearly stated than by Secretary Mellon when he says:

"I do not seek to relieve the rich of taxes. I seek to relieve business of taxes that raise the cost of living to everybody. And I seek at the same time to increase the revenue of the government by levying taxes that can be collected."

Secretary Mellon has recommended a maximum tax of 25 per cent upon the richest estates and individuals. Persons who do not know the facts say: "This is relieving the rich of their just share of taxation." But the fact is just the reverse. It is obvious, for instance, that a 25 per cent tax upon one billion dollars of income which the 35,000 richest people in the United States reported in 1916 would have produced for the government in revenue $250,000,000. That is what the government could get under the Mellon plan.

But those who do not know how in Congress imposed a maximum rate of 58 per cent upon such large incomes in 1922 and the total of these incomes reported was $365,000,000, on which the government received $211,700,000.

Raising the tax from 25 to 58 per cent, had the effect, not of increasing the revenue of the government, but of diminishing it over $38,000,000. This was done without evasion of the law because the State and municipal governments are constantly pouring out, for their own public improvements, non-taxable bonds not subject to any sort of taxation except death taxes.

It is impossible to get through Congress any provision for a constitutional amendment making these municipal and State bond issues taxable, because every member of Congress knows that such an amendment would interfere with local improvements in his own State—interfere with good roads, more schoolhouses and public buildings—and he knows that in his district will not stand for that!

It is a curious thing that we not only drive capital enterprise, but furnish a refuge for it to enter.

It is the wealth of the world and benefiting everybody, we will confiscate you, but if you don't like being confiscated, you may enter this nice one tax-exempt security resort which we have provided to protect you from ourselves."

Secretary Mellon is Uncle Sam's very capable financial manager, and he is going to get out of the rich the very last cent that can be got out of them by taxation without killing the geese that lays golden eggs.

He is a great financier. He has already reduced the national debt by nearly five billion dollars, and he now gives the United States that benefit which is the unmatchable ability which made him in private affairs one of the five or six ablest business men in the world.

Air Mail Legislation

Representative La Guardia has introduced a meritorious bill that would put the air-mail service upon as substantial a basis as the transportation of mail by the railroads.

As it is now, an unassuming Postmaster-General could, of his own motion, discontinue this most important aviation service.

Air-mail is no longer an experiment, for it has demonstrated itself, the night flying now being 95 per cent efficient. But possibly the greatest thing about it is that it helps along the common understanding of the importance of the air plane in our present life.

The air mail is developing here, whose services would be invaluable in time of emergency.

This service is, therefore, too valuable to the country to be at the mercy of any official, and Congress should make it a fixed establishment by proper legislation.

We Like France

So "Anything in Reason" Says Us

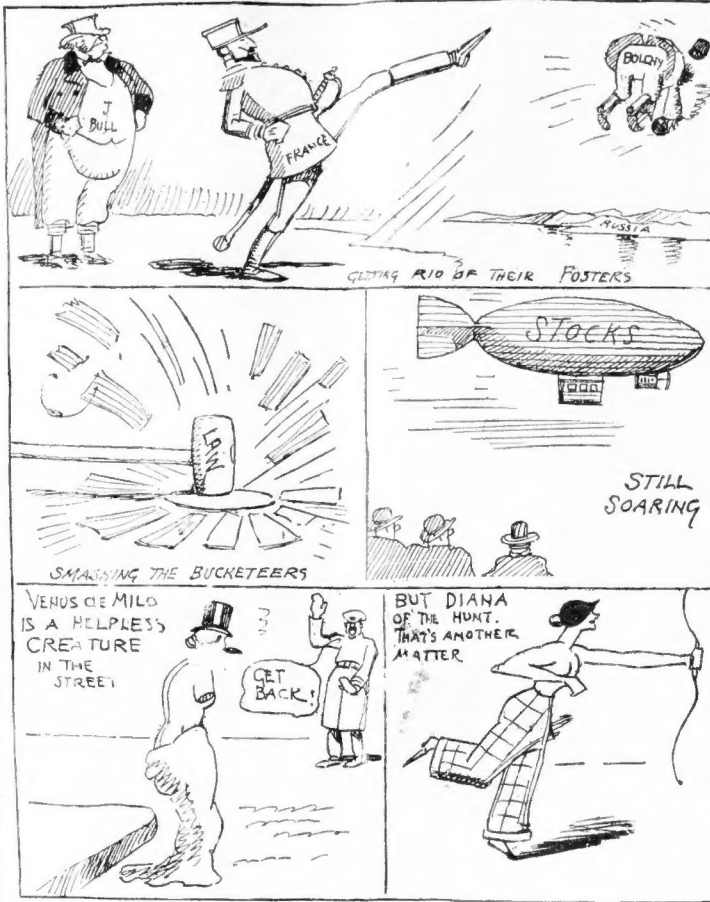

France will ask eighty years in which to pay her debts to the United States. That is said to be the program. She will ask also for a full moratorium, running from four to ten years, no interest or principal to be paid during that time. She will also request permission to pay a lower interest rate than the amount paid by England—2½ to 3 per cent. will be the price suggested.

United States citizens who will supply the money will be glad to make any reasonable concessions to the French people, good friends of ours in the past, and whom we want for friends now.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

MOST of the Great Lovers of all time, story and history have been misunderstood. Nobody understands a lover, anyway—not even himself.

Bluebird may have been only a misunderstood husband, after all—no one would have been so sure of it. He was a perfect collector of beautiful things, where he could find them. He was a perfect collector of beautiful things, where he could find them. He was a perfect collector of beautiful things, where he could find them.

No doubt Omar Khayyam stuck to the jug of wine and the loaf of bread, even if he did manage to change the "THOU" occasionally. A man's love never really changes—it is only the object of it that keeps on changing.

Perhaps the reason why Bluebird's heart was so much for her was that he was so much for her. He was so much for her that he was so much for her. He was so much for her that he was so much for her.

Lockever got to the wedding on TIME, but if he had lived in these days he would probably still be telephoning from some road-house that he was home.

THE HELPING HAND

Letters Not Answered Personally. No Attention Paid to Telephone Calls or Anonymous Letters. No Names Published.

Needs Warm Clothes
Helping Hand Editor:
I am a poor boy, 17 years old. Will you help me, as I have no money or overcoats? I was out of school all this week because I did not have shoes, or warm clothes to wear. I have to go to a long way of school out here in the country and it is very cold. I wear size 2½ shoes. My little sister needs a warm coat and scarf, and other warm things to wear; she is 11 years old.

Without Underwear
Helping Hand Editor:
I have eight children, six boys, 12, 10, 8, 6 and 2 years of age, and two girls, one four years, the other seven weeks old. Most all need underwear as they are going to school without any. If some kind reader had a pair of socks of some kind to give me, it would help to keep them warm at night, as our house is very cold.

Worst of Luck
Helping Hand Editor:
We seem to be having the worst of luck. My husband was hurt by a 600-pound pig while he was trying to kill it, and has caught cold in the wound and suffers terribly. Could you get me some white cloth to bandage it with? I have used everything, even the only night gown I had. My husband got a job driving a jitney, but he had decent clothes, but the boss took away his shoes and overalls and he takes size 8 and wears size 8. He is so cold and has no stockings to keep his legs warm on both sides of his feet, and he looks as bad as for Christmas.

Spent Last Money
Helping Hand Editor:
I am writing to some kind readers would please help a mother who has been sick for the last month. I have three children and expect another in a couple of months. I don't have any money for food yesterday.

Help Appreciated
Helping Hand Editor:
As I have not the address of Mrs. M. I. S. Myrtle, Ct., I cannot write her a letter and thank her for her kindness, much as I would like to do so. Will you therefore thank her through your column and let her know how much we appreciate her assistance?

Shoes Needed
Helping Hand Editor:
I am very sick and my husband is not working. Will you please help me get clothes and shoes for my three children? My little girl, ten years old, needs a pair of shoes, size 11; my boy, eight years old, needs a pair of shoes, size 10; and my girl, six years old, needs a pair of shoes, size 8. I would like clothes for myself and my husband. We are both medium height.

THE WATCH, CLOCK AND THE DRUM

By DR. FRANK CRANE

SOMEbody said that if a watch, a clock, and a drum are going at the same time, you hear only the drum.

Stop the drum, and you hear the clock. Stop the clock, and you hear the watch.

When one denies the existence of the finer voices of life, what it usually amounts to is simply that he does not hear them; they are drowned out by coarser noises.

In the play, "Sinners," a girl who has yielded to the lure of the city and sold herself for money and fine clothes happens to meet again the lover of her youth, a manly country doctor. He discovers her infamy, but instead of upbraiding her he quietly says to her, in substance: "When you get through, and turn from your present life with loathing, come back to me. Of course, I cannot love you as I once did. But I love you. I am the kind that love but once. There will never be anybody but you." And the amazed and shattered woman cries out, "I didn't know there were such men!"

It is the way of us all. We do not know there exist beautiful, towering, divine souls right among us. We do not know they walk the streets like tall, white angels. We do not know they are secretly doing their life tasks, close to us, so close we brush by them daily, going about their work with such stellar poise, and with so wondrous a dignity that if we could perceive it we might hear a command from the white sky: "Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whither thou standest is holy ground."

The drum! It sounds in the newspaper; the roar of scandal, murder, politics, and business; and obscures for us the real life of the people moving toward justice, love and truth, but moving silently, as the watch ticks.

The drum! It rattles and throbs in war's wild clamor; but that is not all that is going on in Europe; you cannot hear the steady clock-ticks of advancing democracy, the watch-ticks of humanity marking the unfolding of men's conviction, silent and irresistible as time.

The drum of the city! Its street-roar, its night revelry, the roll of its day traffic, its heartlessness and brute belownings! We cannot hear the modest tinklings of thousands of gentle hearts marking time to duty, to service, and to consecration.

The drum! In the bickerings of the family we overwhelm the hidden music of love and loyalty, we miss the myriad thoughts of helpfulness and self-sacrifice, and we imagine they are not.

The drum in your own brain, the cheap beating and resonance of minor issues, of pride and hate and struggle—because of this you know not anything of your real life flowing in continuous unrecurrent.

Stop the drum! Stop the clock! Listen to the watch! Enter into silence! You will hear dead, miraculous things in the world, in the lives of those about you, in yourself.

For the significant processes of destiny are not at drumbeats, but at the ticking of the watch.

WHERE SINGING SANDS ARE FOUND

By Garrett P. Service
"I HAVE been reading," says a correspondent, "of the sound of drums and trumpets rising out of a beach on the coast of Cornwall, where it is walked on. This is a fact or is it a myth?"

I have read of this wonderful sound myself. In some scientific journal, and I believe that what is told of it is mainly fact, because similar phenomena are known to exist in many parts of the world, and it is well known that the sand in these places has been found to be of even grain, and that it is of a fine, light color, and is of a fine, light color, and is of a fine, light color.

The effect has been compared to a chorus of light-strung, melodiously breaking on the ear, with prolonged resonance.

More accurately, however, they are audible on sandy beaches, and are heard when the wind is strong and the musical tones are so harmonious and beautiful, that the listener attains to a state of mind in which his nerves tingle at the suggestion of music, although the actual music is playing in the air about him.

The sound of singing sands is brought about by the fact that the churning of the sand, when it is blown on the surface of the water, produces a sound which is very similar to the sound of singing.

When they are loud and multiply in tone to resemble the sound of the various instruments of an orchestra, playing in a most perfect tone, and the sound seems more ethereal than human.

Such phenomena are due to "musical sands," and they have been scientifically investigated and explained. No doubt they are responsible for many of the old superstitions about fairies and evil spirits, and the sound which "sympathetic men" make.

But singing sands are not musical. Music is regulated noise, and in order that the sound of singing sands is brought about by the fact that the churning of the sand, when it is blown on the surface of the water, produces a sound which is very similar to the sound of singing.

Similar rocks have been noticed by travelers in Arabia, Persia, and it has been suggested that the famous status of the musical instrument, the organ, is due to the fact that the organ is made of sand, and the sound which it produces is very similar to the sound of singing.

And if the one at Rome, in various, no indications will be given that the organ is made of sand, and the sound which it produces is very similar to the sound of singing.

ONCE-OVERS

CURE YOUR QUARRELS BY FORGETTING THEM

It is quoted that "you can't end a quarrel by slamming a door behind you."

But haven't you tried to end a quarrel this way times without number?

That slam was intended as a parting shot, and you thought that you would have liked to recall some of your statements which you now realize hurt, were, moreover, untrue.

And if the one at Rome, in various, no indications will be given that the organ is made of sand, and the sound which it produces is very similar to the sound of singing.
